

The State Board of Education has approved the following methods for disposition of old textbooks:

- 1. Local boards of education may not give textbooks replaced by the new adoption to any person, firm, corporation, or institution for use where tuition is charged or for resale except as provided in subsections (4) or (5) of this section.
- 2. Local boards of education may allow the use of these textbooks or give them to students for use as supplementary material.
- 3. Local boards of education may sell these textbooks only for scrap paper and must remit the proceeds to the Department of Public Instruction.
- 4. Local boards of education may donate these books to other state and local governmental agencies.
- 5. Local boards of education may donate these textbooks to non-profit organizations for use in adult education programs and in foreign countries to increase the general literacy of the people.
